

Crossing the Atlantic: What do American families need to know?

Part one: Arrivals

These two great nations share many things, from a language to music and culinary tastes, to sports and interests in celebrity goings-on. One thing that does differ is our legal systems and how we navigate day to day matters such as tax, trusts, and family law.

This talk brings together a collection of speakers who work with US individuals and families based in the UK. We will dive into the key considerations before arriving and upon settling here, whether moving here with established families or starting one once in the UK.

This seminar will appeal to US professionals who have settled or are looking at settling in the UK and professional advisors.
